CELEBRATING DIVERSITY AND MUSIC

SEPT
04

we're coming back!

FORT WILLIAM HISTORICAL PARK

Lac des Mille Lacs First Nation is proud to announce that 'Live Free Live Righteous' will be coming back for another year! After the incredible success of last year's event and the overwhelmingly positive responses from all those involved, we knew that LFLR (Live Free Live Righteous) was exactly the type of message and event people greatly desired and needed.

LFLR is envisioned to be a community concert event supporting positive social values such as, anti-racism, anti-hate, anti-bullying and gender and sexual equality. LFLR is a concert event where all people can come together and promote these values. It is the goal of LFLR to encourage positive social growth and promote equality, diversity and respect in the region.

LFLR is meant as an affirmation to those who believe in living a life which advocates positive social growth and values. This declaration acts as a life code by those willing to accept it to Live life Free of the negative constraints placed by others and to Live Righteously, promoting these values for others.

Simply put, LFLR is about striving for your fullest potential and encouraging and supporting others to fulfill theirs!

LFLR is on the fast track to becoming one of the region's most popular and most prolific summer events. Last year's 3000+ person attendance not only broke the professionally forecasted attendance figures, but also made LFLR one of Thunder Bay's most highly attended summer events!

This year's event will again be non-profit. Tickets will be sold electronically with part of the proceeds going to support local charities. Tickets will be made available free of charge to all Lac des Mille Lacs First Nation band and community members.

Indigenous children on reserves miss out on child benefit

The new Canada child benefit is based on income reported on tax returns. If parents don't file taxes, their kids miss out.

Chantal Perrault, with 5-month-old Harlow, from the Red Gut First Nation near Fort Frances Ont., is among as many as 50 per cent of indigenous parents living on reserves who don't file income taxes. (COURTESY OF CHANTAL PERRAULT)

By LAURIE MONSEBRAATEN Social justice reporter, and JASMINE KABATAY Star Reporters
Wed., July 20, 2016

The first monthly Canada child benefit cheques, worth up to $533 per child, went out to more than 3 million homes Wednesday.

But because 18-year-old Chantal Perrault has never filed a tax return, her 5-month-old baby Harlow is missing out.

"Wow, that is a lot of money. It would buy a lot of baby formula," she said in a phone interview from Red Gut First Nation reserve near Fort Frances, Ont., where she lives in band housing with Harlow's father, grandparents and two cousins.

Perrault is among thousands of indigenous parents on reserves who don't regularly file tax returns, and therefore aren't eligible to receive the income-based benefit aimed at lifting about 300,000 Canadian children out of poverty.

The benefit is expected to help about 8,000 indigenous children escape poverty. But 16,000 would be helped if all parents on reserve filed their taxes, The Canadian Press reported.

Indigenous children are twice as likely to live in poverty as non-aboriginal kids, according to a recent study by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives, which found poverty rates among First Nations children living on reserves are about 60 per cent.

Canada Revenue Agency doesn't track the percentage of tax filers on reserve, but a small 2010 study put the number as high as 50 per cent.

"Further analysis will be required to address limitations in source data and improve the picture of on-reserve filing rates as well identify barriers to filing for indigenous peoples," said a spokeswoman for National Revenue Minister Diane Lebovitch.

This year, 186 community organizations in about 160 municipalities are focused on helping indigenous people file their tax returns and more are expressing interest to help in the future, said Chloé Luciani-Girouard.

Families with net annual incomes below $30,000 receive the maximum $6,400 a year for each child under age 6 and $5,400 per child for those from age 6 through 17.
